MEDIA RELEASE

For 21 January 2008

New principal, new website for St Paul's College

St Paul's College has begun 2008 with the appointment of Mr Daniel Lawler to the position of principal. Mr Lawler replaces Mr Peter Shanahan, who was principal of the College for 15 years, and has taken up a volunteering role with the Christian Brothers in Africa.

Mr Lawler is enthusiastic about the vision he has for St Paul's College, and aims to build on the tradition of Catholic education at the College. "I am a strong believer in boys' education, and I am keen to ensure St Paul's cements its place as a leader in preparing boys to succeed in their chosen fields."

"In particular, I would like to involve families in the school community," he said. "Education is a partnership between school and families and the more that families are involved in school life, the more students benefit from that involvement."

In the lead up to the appointment of Mr Lawler, the St Paul's has been updating its corporate image, culminating with the redevelopment of the school's website.

Manager of the website redevelopment was the school's Public Relations Manager, Ms Diane Lee. "I am very pleased with the new site. It was a big project, but I was determined that the site would reflect the essence of the school, as well as support our corporate identity. We are about Catholic education in the first place, and the education of boys in the second, and knowing that parents are very savvy consumers, I wanted to ensure that there was targeted information about both."

"We have also chosen to highlight some of the school's success stories on the site, as well as showcasing the work of students, so parents can get a feel for what approach the school takes with innovative teaching and learning methodologies."

You can visit the new-look site at www.stpauls.sa.edu.au .
